Abstracts

Adhesive linerless labels are a specialized category of self-adhesive labels that eliminate the need for a separate backing liner, typically through the use of silicone-coated, non-stick facestock or advanced adhesive technologies that allow labels to be wound on rolls without sticking to each other. These labels are designed for efficiency and sustainability, reducing material waste, lowering shipping costs due to lighter weight, and streamlining application processes in high-speed labeling environments such as logistics, food packaging, retail, and manufacturing. Their adhesive properties are engineered to provide reliable tack without transfer or residue, making them suitable for a variety of surfaces including corrugated cardboard, plastics, and glass, while also supporting print technologies like thermal transfer and direct thermal for barcoding, branding, and variable information printing.

The global Adhesive Linerless Label market size was estimated at USD 220.5 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.80% during the forecast period.
