Abstracts

Sales of camcorders picked up in 2010, following a period of decline. Both digital and HD camcorders recorded positive current value growth rates in 2010, which contributed to the overall growth in sales. Digital camcorders saw sales decline prior to 2010 as a result of sales cannibalisation by HD camcorders. In 2010, sales turned positive as a result of renewed interest in camcorders as a whole on the back of a stronger economic situation and renewed marketing efforts by camcorder players.
