Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Geriatric Care Services market size was valued at USD 735260 million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 914030 million by 2030 with a CAGR of 3.2% during review period.

Geriatric care services encompass providing care for the elderly who are facing chronic physical conditions or other diseases and disorders. These services comprise a wide range of personal care, health care, and other services to meet the requirements of older adults who are limited for self-care owing to chronic illness, injury, mental, physical, and cognitive disability or any other health-related disorders. Geriatric care services also offer assistance with daily activities such as bathing, dressing, grooming, eating, and other activities, including medication management and house work.

Presence of favorable reimbursement policies and increased life expectancy are also amongst few factors expected to propel demand for geriatric care services. There is an increase in the adoption level for these services owing to the advantages associated with these services such as in chronic care management. Furthermore, increasing number of homecare and long term care services offered by geriatric care centers such as nursing care, health assessment & monitoring, and counseling & financial support is anticipated to drive the demand for these services.

The Global Info Research report includes an overview of the development of the Geriatric Care Services industry chain, the market status of Nursing Homes (Home Care Services, Adult Care Services), Hospitals (Home Care Services, Adult Care Services), and key enterprises in developed and developing market, and analysed the cutting-edge technology, patent, hot applications and market trends of Geriatric Care
