Abstracts

The global ultrasonic cutter market size was valued at USD 1.3 billion in 2025 and is projected to grow from USD 1.4 billion in 2026 to USD 2.3 billion by 2033, at a CAGR of 7.5% from 2026 to 2033. Asia Pacific dominated the market, accounting for a revenue share of 42.7% in 2025. The global ultrasonic cutter market is driven by increasing demand for precise and efficient cutting across food processing, textiles, automotive, plastics, and composites.

High-frequency blade vibrations enable clean cuts with lower material deformation, product adhesion, and edge damage than conventional methods, making the technology suitable for delicate, multilayered, and thermoplastic materials. In food processing, ultrasonic cutting improves portioning accuracy while reducing product waste, whereas textile applications benefit from simultaneous cutting and edge sealing.

In addition, integration with automated production lines, robotic systems, and computer-controlled equipment is increasing the use of ultrasonic cutters in high-volume manufacturing. These systems provide consistent cutting quality, shorter processing cycles, lower tool wear, and reduced operator intervention. Their capability to process technical textiles, nonwovens, films, composites, rubber, and specialized food products is broadening industrial applications, while customized tooling facilitates integration into existing production systems.
