Endoscopy is the close examination of internal organs and vessels of the human body, which is used to inspect a person's digestive tract. It helps to suspect if an organ or precise area of the body is damaged, infected or cancerous. There are many types of endoscopic devices for detecting different types of diseases. One such device is Gastrointestinal Endoscopic Devices, used to inspect any infection or abnormalities in the function of the gastrointestinal tract. Other devices include endoscopes, visualization systems and operative devices.

Asia-Pacific is the fastest growing region during the forecast period due to increasing number of endoscopic surgeries and improving healthcare infrastructure in India; investment by government and healthcare officials in China, and growing endoscopy research support in Japan.

Rising prevalence of diseases such as digestive and gastric diseases, steady flow of investments by Government, and other health care organizations worldwide, cost effective procedures, advancements in endoscopy technology, fast growing patient pool, and appropriate FDA approvals are the factors responsible for the growth of the endoscopy devices market.
