Also the review contains estimations and market participants' opinions on occurring situations, and information on leading players of hardware market for cable and satellite TV.

General conclusions:

The Russian hardware market of paid TV completely depends on import. As to manufacturers and suppliers of various hardware elements to reveal them is a quite complex problem as they declare themselves in the most various codes according to the All-Russian qualifier of kinds of economic activities.

As a matter of fact, companies are system integrators and/or suppliers of cable, satellite and on-air broadcasting equipment.

Besides, majority of participants are specialized in installation, repair, and setting-up, equipment service. For example, it is registered 722 companies specializing in installation, repair and maintenance of professional radio, television, sound recording equipment in Russia. As to radio and television equipment repair and other audio and video equipment it is engaged in 1129 companies, etc.

Basic demand for hardware is met from users in the paid TV market. So, capacity of cable and satellite TV market grows in Russia annually, by different estimations, on the average at 25-50% at average revenue per user at level about $2. According to preliminary data the market volume reached to $980 million in 2008.

Traditionally there is concentrated a significant users base in a segment of cable TV that makes more half of entire market. But segment of satellite TV is the most profitable.

Development impact of paid TV market and that of hardware will be stage-by-stage realization of the «Development concept of television and radio broadcasting in Russia throughout 2008-2015» by the state with attraction of private investments.

The technical basis of television broadcasting is factories and operators specializing in manufacture of different hardware elements, telecommunication, radio broadcasting and television.
