Nicotinamide Supplement is a nutritional supplement formulated with nicotinamide, a water-soluble form of vitamin B3. Nicotinamide is involved in energy metabolism and serves as a precursor for nicotinamide adenine dinucleotide and related coenzymes that support numerous cellular processes. Supplement products are available in tablets, capsules, powders, liquids, and other dosage forms, with formulations varying in nicotinamide concentration and additional ingredients. The product is primarily used for dietary vitamin B3 supplementation and nutritional support. It is distinct from prescription medicines and from cosmetic products containing nicotinamide as a topical active ingredient. Product quality is mainly evaluated through ingredient purity, dosage accuracy, stability, and formulation consistency.

The upstream industry supplies pharmaceutical or food-grade nicotinamide, excipients, binders, fillers, coatings, flavoring agents, capsules, and packaging materials. The midstream industry performs formulation development, weighing, blending, granulation,
