Abstracts

The UK public expenditure on law, order and protective services research report analyses the historic and forecast levels of public spending in the law, order and security sector in the UK. The report covers expenditure on the administration of justice, prisons and offender programmes, police, immigration and citizenship, fire services, civil defence, constitutional and community services and other security and legal services. The report analyses trends over a five year historical and a detailed five year forecast period. The report includes an analysis of capital and current investment and includes regional comparisons of spending.

The report is updated to combine the up-to-date development and trends with the latest data available on the public expenditure on law, order and protective services in the UK.
