Appliance Repair in the US

The recovering economy will not help this industry succeed in the next five years. As consumer spending revives, individuals will look to purchase new home and garden appliances, inhibiting growth for repair services. However, long-term demand will likely increase due to a growing supply of products that will require repairs in the future. The industry will also benefit from increasing prices of household appliances, which may encourage consumers to have current items repaired rather than replace them.

Companies within this industry repair and service garden equipment and household appliances, such as lawnmowers, leaf blowers, washing machines, clothes dryers and refrigerators. These services are provided to both businesses and households.

This report covers the scope, size, disposition and growth of the industry including the key sensitivities and success factors. Also included are five year industry forecasts, growth rates and an analysis of the industry key players and their market shares.
