Refined Petroleum Pipeline Transportation in the US

Cruising down the pipeline

The need to move fuel to major market centers has expanded along with the growing demand for a range of fuels. Growth in the transportation of petroleum products via pipelines has exceeded that of overall petroleum product demand. The underlying factor to this growth is the growing market share of the fuel transport market, at the expense of other modes of transport, most notably water.

Firms in this industry transport refined petroleum products via pipeline systems. The major products transported are gasoline, diesel and aviation fuel. Pipelines that haul natural gas liquids are also included.

This report covers the scope, size, disposition and growth of the industry including the key sensitivities and success factors. Also included are five year industry forecasts, growth rates and an analysis of the industry key players and their market shares.
