EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The carbonated soft drinks market in Bahrain was equal to 94.00 million USD (calculated in retail prices) in 2014. Until 2024, the drinks market in Bahrain is forecast to reach 131.35 million USD (in retail prices), thus increasing at a CAGR of 3.42% per annum for the period 2019-2024. This is an increase, compared to the growth of about 2.56% per year, registered in 2014-2018.

The average consumption per capita in value terms reached 69.53 USD per capita (in retail prices) in 2014. In the next five years, it declined at a CAGR of -0.99% per annum. In the medium term (by 2024), the indicator is forecast to increase at a CAGR of 1.00% per annum.

One of the most important trends on the carbonated soft drinks market is linked with the surging demand for healthy and sustainable products. Consumers' preferences have shifted to more natural products with "clean label", including fermented drinks, teas, lower sugar beverages and fortified drinks with health benefit claims. As a result, the major players have been significantly challenged. In order to remain competitive, they try to reduce their use of sugar and to include fortified carbonated soft drinks, as well as zero-calorie drinks in their portfolio. In addition, the number of people, who are paying attention to labelling is increasing. Thus, companies also need to focus on transparency and simplicity regarding information in order to gain customers' trust.

While in Asia cola remains one of the most popular flavored carbonated soft drinks, there is a growing interest in the combination of carbonated and dairy drinks. In US, the sales of carbonated soft drinks in 2018 picked up, driven by the diet soda segment. When it comes to corporate restructurings, mergers and acquisition deals have been especially popular in recent years. Some of the largest, including Coca-Cola and PepsiCo have been particularly active. For instance, in 2018, PepsiCo completed the acquisition of SodaStream, a producer of machines that carbonate home tap water. Similarly, Coca-Cola participated in numerous merger deals over the past few years, thus diversifying its portfolio.
