South-East Asia construction equipment market growth is buoyed by several factors such as growing real estate market, expansion of public & private infrastructures and demand in mining sector.

Rising government spending for upgrading existing infrastructure combined with new projects especially in countries such as Indonesia and Malaysia, and budding utility projects (Hydropower & Thermal Power) in Laos, Cambodia and Thailand have resulted into growing demand for construction equipment in South-East Asia region. Moreover, signs of economic recovery in several South-East Asian countries associated with increase in inflows of FDI have resulted into growth of construction market.

According to 6Wresearch, South-East Asia construction equipment market is forecast to grow at a CAGR of 2.3% during 2016-22. Several Chinese equipment manufacturers have started targeting South-East Asian market, which has resulted into decline in prices of equipment due to growing competition.
