Snapshot

Membrane filtration is a technique which is used to separate particles from a liquid for the purpose of purifying it. The main force of membrane technology is the fact that it works without the addition of chemicals, with a relatively low energy use and easy and well-arranged process conductions. There are two factors that determine the affectivity of a membrane filtration process; selectivity and productivity. Selectivity is expressed as a parameter called retention or separation factor (expressed by the unit l/m2?h). Productivity is expressed as a parameter called flux (expressed by the unit l/m2?h). Selectivity and productivity are membrane-dependent.

The global Membrane Filtration market will reach xxx Million USD in 2017. The report begins from overview of Industry Chain structure, and describes industry environment, then analyses market size and forecast of Membrane Filtration by product, region and application, in addition, this report introduces market competition situation among the companies and company profile, besides, market price analysis and value chain features are covered in this report.
