Alcoholic beverages are consumed among all demographics across the world and are based on the substrates that are locally available. The differences between the prices of alcoholic beverages in Bahrain are majorly determined by two factors—the cost of production and the duties levied on those costs. In addition, the production methods play a crucial role in determining the prices of premium/super premium spirits and wines.

High disposable income, increase in number of on premise (bars, cafes, restaurants) distribution channel, and surge in demand for premium products drive the growth of the Bahrain alcoholic beverages market. However, high cost of premium/super premium products and increase in demand for nonalcoholic beverages, owing to health concerns majorly restrict the market growth.

others. Based on distribution channel, the market is fragmented into convenience stores, on premises, liquor stores, internet retailing, and supermarkets.
