Abstracts

Confectionery is associated with food products that contain high sugar content such as chocolates, gums, candies, caramel, sweets, cookies, and marshmallows. These food products are usually utilized to reduce stress, alleviate boredom, and satisfy cravings. Confectioneries can be preserved for long time and are consumed by all age groups. Cocoa products, flours, sorbitol, lecithins, oils & fats, sugar, and latex are some of the raw materials used in the industry. Dietetic and therapeutic confectionaries are also available in the market, which differ chemically from traditional confections. The confectionery market size is valued at $184,056 million in 2015 and is expected to reach $232,085 million by 2022, registering a CAGR of 3.4% from 2016 to 2022.

The confectionery market is driven by introduction of new products with innovative flavors & healthy ingredients, growth in retail market, rise in number of women workforce, and increase in gifting trend. Asia-Pacific is expected to register substantial growth in the market, owing to rise in disposable income and increase in population in emerging economies such as China and India. In addition, introduction of low priced, smaller versions of established confectionery chocolate brands by companies such as Nestl? India Ltd. and Mondelez International, Inc. in India supplemented the market growth. Increase in raw material prices and diverse consumer spending habits restrain the growth of the market; however, rise in demand for sugar-free, organic, and low-calorie products and increase in disposable income in developing economies are anticipated to provide lucrative opportunities for the growth and development of the market.

The report segments confectionery market on the basis of type and geography. Based on type, the market is categorized into sugar, chocolate, fine bakery wares, and others. Others include gums, mints, and ice creams. Geographically, the market is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.

In October 2016, The Hershey Company launched Hershey's Cookie Layer Crunch bar to cater to the growing demands for various snacking occasions and multi-textural eating experiences.
