Abstracts

The global hair scissors market was valued at $93.0 million in 2019, and is projected to reach $106.6 million by 2027, registering a CAGR of 5.4% from 2021 to 2027.

Hair scissor is a hair dressing product that is used to trim and give different styles to hair to enhance the appearance and get the desired look. The different types of hair scissors include hair cutting scissors, hair thinning scissor, and hair thinning scissor. Moreover, these products are easily available through distribution channels, including online stores, supermarkets/hypermarkets, specialty stores, and salons. Continuous expansion of online stores and offline stores acts as a key driving force of the global hair scissors market.

Surge in influence of strong celebrities among customers contributes toward the market growth. Moreover, rise in number of appearance-conscious consumer propels the growth of the market. However, the availability of counterfeit hair scissors is expected to restrict the growth of the hair scissors market during the forecast period. In addition, easy availability of hair scissors substitutes, such as hair trimmers, in the market at competitive price is anticipated to hamper the growth of the market during the forecast period. Conversely, rapid growth of the online channel is anticipated to offer lucrative opportunity for the growth of the hair scissors market during the forecast period.

Owing to the outbreak of coronavirus pandemic, the growth of hair scissors market has declined sharply, as most of the barbershops or salons are closed due to lockdown. Along with this, lack of labor and raw material availability has affected the production plants of hair scissors, thereby hampering the production and supply of hair scissors.

The global hair scissors market is segmented into product type, end user, sales channel, and region.
