Abstracts

Investment banking is a division of a financial institution, which provides consulting services to governments, corporations, and institutions in the market. It serves as middlemen for creditors and businesses in the market. It helps in assisting several factors such as rising capital for business expansions, projects, initial public offerings (IPOs), and facilitates mergers & acquisitions (M&A) of corporate companies. Several investment banks function on primary brokerage and wealth management facilities in coordination with their investment research enterprises.

Rise in demand for advisory & consultancy services regarding rising capital for business expansions, projects, initial public offerings (IPOs), and facilitating mergers & acquisitions of corporate companies is becoming a major factor driving the investment banking & trading services market growth. In addition, increasing competitions & a number of external forces demanding for an investment banker and surge in need for capital requirements & business expansion among firms are some of the factors propelling the market growth. However, rising cyber-attacks for data security and stringent government regulations are some of the factors that hamper the market

On the contrary, surge in mergers & acquisitions among banks & financial institutions, which are adopting new approaches for on-going business operations rather than rebuilding from scratch are expected to increase the demand for investment banking & trading services globally. Rapid business expansion engaging in complex business activity and massive need for consultancy services are expected to provide lucrative opportunities for the market in the coming years.

The investment banking & trading services market is segmented on the basis of service type, industry vertical, and region. On the basis of service type, the market is segmented into equity underwriting & debt underwriting services, trading & related services, financial advisory, and others. Based on industry vertical, the market is segmented into BFSI, healthcare, manufacturing, energy & utilities, IT & telecom, retail & consumer goods, media & entertainment, and others. Region-wise, the market is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.
