Abstracts

The global personal care packaging market size is expected to reach $39,585 million by 2022 from $27,895 million in 2015 with a CAGR of 5.25% from 2016 to 2022. The primary function of personal care packaging is to protect personal products such as body cream, oils, body lotions, soap, shampoos, conditioners, cosmetics, shower gels, toiletries, and others from damage or contamination from air, moisture, or toxins. The personal care packaging industry uses different type of materials to construct suitable product packaging such as plastics, paper, metals, and cloth. The packaging systems are in the form of boxes, bottles, pumps, and sprays. Personal care packaging not only keeps products safe from damage or contamination but also promote the products and attract consumers.

Changing global lifestyles along with rapid urbanization stimulate the market growth. Moreover, increasing demand for personal care products such as beauty products, hair care, and skin care products have been driving the growth of market over the last decade. Technological innovations for improving the manufacturing process for flexible packaging is expected to open new avenues for the personal care packaging market. Increasing herbal personal care product base as well as product line extension of existing products for men, women, and children, for instance, gender specific cologne, soaps and face wash supports substantial growth of the global personal care packaging market. However, fluctuating prices of raw materials, such as polypropylene (PP) and high-density polyethylene (HDPE), are expected to hinder the growth of the personal care packaging market.

The global personal care packaging market is segmented based on product type, application, and geography. By product type, the market is further bifurcated into paper, flexible, glass, packaging, rigid plastics, metal, and others (nonwoven fabrics and cardboards). By application, the market is further categorized into skin care, hair care, bath care, shower, cosmetics, and others (oil care, cotton pads, and wipes). Geographically, the market is segmented into North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.
