Abstracts

The US is a leader in the global metals and mining industry.

Biggest players in the US base metals industry include Freeport-McMoRan Copper & Gold, Rio Tinto and Teck Resources Ltd, amongst others. Successful players like Teck Resources Limited have differentiated themselves in the industry by offering additional goods and services.

Recent mergers and acquisitions in this market, such as Rio Tinto's acquisition of Alcan and Freeport-McMoRan's acquisition of Phelps Dodge have consolidated the market, reducing the number of players, but increasing their size.

Copper is the market leader amongst all the base metals in the US, and copper mining in the US remains a major industry since the 1840s. Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, Nevada, and Montana are the largest copper producing states in the country, with the Morenci Copper Mine and the Bingham Canyon Mine being the largest copper mines in the US.
