About CityXpress.com Corp.

CityXpress Corp (the Company) was incorporated as a Florida corporation in 1981. The company is a Vancouver-based technology company and has developed a suite of online products that provide newspapers with powerful solutions through which they can extend their position as the dominant means for local advertisers to promote themselves to local consumers. The Company's online auction product allows newspapers to auction vendor's products in exchange for advertising credits with the newspaper, with the newspaper retaining the cash from all products that are sold in the online auction. The Company's online special sections, designed to complement the sections newspapers run regularly in their print editions, integrates niche editorial content with advertising and promotional tools that leverage a newspaper's brand and traffic. Through alliances with newspapers, CityXpress is building a North American presence for its products, utilizing the advertising sales forces of its customers to sell its suite of promotional products.

The Company's XpressAuctions product offers newspapers the opportunity to boost advertising sales to local merchants through auctions that the newspaper sponsors throughout the year. XpressAuctions provides a complete package for the management and running of the newspaper's auction, with extensive workflow features built in to ease the work effort required by the newspaper.

CityXpress Products

The Company has developed a suite of proprietary products that are used to deliver a range of services to its partners through the company's Internet server facility. These services are integrated into the company's partner's sites as branded auctions or special sections. Each of these service offerings, run on the company's web and database servers, provides its partners with additional content for their sites and provides their sales forces with a variety of revenue-generating services that can be sold to local businesses. The Company provides its partners with sophisticated Internet-based tools to manage the content within each of the modules.

XpressAuctions

XpressAuctions provides a complete environment to allow a newspaper to set up, run and fulfill an auction. A comprehensive administrative workflow environment is provided to allow the newspaper to set up and manage all aspects of an online auction, from entering product information and graphics directly into the auction database to collecting payments from successful bidders. The auction engine automatically manages an auction when it is in progress, from managing bidder registrations to accepting bids and determining and posting leading bids. A marketing subsystem is incorporated that, during the course of the online auction, provides bidders with messages encouraging them to continue bidding and with bid confirmations that include coupons for vendors on whose products they have bid. A "reverse publishing" feature is also incorporated that automatically produces a print catalogue of items from the online database in a format specified by the newspaper. A post-auction fulfillment system provides the newspaper with online and telephone facilities to collect bids and applicable taxes from the winning bidder. The fulfillment system also allows a newspaper to manage payments from credit cards to cash payments, and move to second place bidders if winning bidders default on payment.

XpressSections

XpressSections offer a group of stories and features related to the focus of the special section. To appeal and draw readers back to the site on an ongoing basis, stories are refreshed daily. As well as the current day's stories, readers can find previous stories archived by topic (e.g., Decorating or Home Improvement). From the special section, users can access related business profiles, a coupon flyer and a shopping guide. Large format, banner and tile ads may be sold and scheduled on the various pages of a special section. CityXpress provides the editorial content for the special sections which is licensed from content providers under content agreements such as Tribune Media Service, United Press International, Universal Press Syndicate and Washin
