About Teleconnect Inc.

Teleconnect Inc., through its subsidiaries, engages in the manufacturing and leasing of electronic age validation equipment, the performance of age validation transactions remotely, the performance of market surveys, and the broadcasting of in-store commercial messages using the age validation equipment in between age checks.

Products and Services

The company's system (Ageviewers) is designed to check ages remotely. Using a special terminal at its customers' checkout and a secure Internet connection, during transactions involving products with a minimum legal age limit, a brief video connection is created between the terminal and an external age-verification center of it. At this center, specially trained verification personnel perform the actual age verification based on the incoming images of customers buying alcohol or tobacco. Also, the system provides for the exact age to be determined based on photo identification.

The operators of the external age-verification center are not in direct contact with the person being assessed. If a terminal is not in use (before or after age verification), the system can display specific advertising material, geared to the products being scanned at that moment, if desired. The terminals are also suitable for brief market surveys. It has developed an in-store camera-security system which is being piloted in the Netherlands. The customers' terminals are linked with its database server every few seconds; such that background tests are continuously performed to confirm that the technology is available.

Market

The company is focused primarily on retail trade. In the Netherlands approximately 7,500 liquor stores and supermarkets conclude approximately 350 million age-restricted transactions per annum.
