About Xenoport, Inc.

XenoPort, Inc. operates as a biopharmaceutical company. The company focuses on developing and commercializing a portfolio of internally discovered product candidates that utilize the body's natural nutrient transport mechanisms. The company's product candidates, referred to as Transported Prodrugs, are created by modifying the chemical structure of marketed drugs, referred to as parent drugs, and are designed to correct limitations in the oral absorption, distribution and/or metabolism of the parent drug. The company intends to focus its development and commercialization activities on the treatments of diseases with significant unmet medical needs, with an emphasis on central nervous system, or CNS, disorders.

XP13512 (Known as Horizant in the United States) — A Transported Prodrug of Gabapentin

XP13512 is being developed in Japan for the potential treatment of restless legs syndrome and in the United States for the potential treatment of RLS, neuropathic pain and prophylactic treatment of migraine headaches. The company's main product candidate, XP13512 (gabapentin enacarbil), is licensed to Astellas Pharma Inc. in Japan and five Asian countries and to Glaxo Group Limited, or GSK, in the United States and all other regions of the world. Astellas has filed a new drug application, or NDA, with the Pharmaceuticals and Medical Device Agency, or PMDA, for approval of XP13512 as a treatment for restless legs syndrome in Japan.

Arbaclofen Placarbil, or AP — A Transported Prodrug of R-baclofen

The company is in the process of developing its product candidate, AP, a Transported Prodrug of R-baclofen, for the potential adjunctive treatment of patients with GERD and for the potential treatment of spasticity.

XP21279 — A Transported Prodrug of L-Dopa

The company is developing its product candidate, XP21279, a Transported Prodrug of L-Dopa, for the potential treatment of Parkinson's disease. The company holds a composition-of-matter patent and a formulation patent in the United States on XP21279.

XP21510 — A Transported Prodrug of Tranexamic Acid

The company's fourth product candidate is XP21510, a Transported Prodrug of tranexamic acid, for the potential treatment of menorrhagia, or heavy menstrual bleeding. The company holds a composition-of-matter patent, formulation patent and method-of-use patent directed to XP21510, and holds patents or pending patent applications directed to the methods of synthesis in the United States and directed to the composition of matter, formulations and methods of synthesis and use in other jurisdictions.

ANALYSIS FEATURES

SWOT Analysis

SWOT, which stands for Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats, is an analytical framework that identifies the internal and external factors that are favorable and unfavorable for a company.

Enhanced SWOT Analysis

Enhanced SWOT is a 3x3 grid that arranges strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats into one scheme:

How to use the strengths to take advantage of the opportunities?

How to use the strengths to reduce likelihood and impact of the threats?

How to overcome the weaknesses that obstruct taking advantage of the opportunities?

How to overcome the weaknesses that can make the threats a reality?

Upon answering these questions a company can develop a project plan to improve its business performance.

PESTEL Analysis

PESTEL (also termed as PESTLE) is an ideal tool to strategically analyze what influence different outside factors – political, economic, sociocultural, technological, environmental and legal – exert on a business to later chart its long term targets.

Being part of the external analysis when carrying out a strategic assessment or performing a market study, PESTEL gives an overview of diverse macro-environmental factors that any company should thoughtfully consider. By perceiving these outside environments, businesses can maximally benefit from the opportunities while minimizing the threats to the organization.

Key Factors Examined by PESTEL Analysis:

Political – What opportunities and pressures are brought by political bodies and what is the degree of public regulations' impact on the business?

Economic – What economic policies, trends and structures are expected to affect the organization, what is this influence's degree?

Sociological – What cultural and societal aspects will work upon the demand for the business's products and operations?

Technological – What impact do the technological aspects, innovations, incentives and barriers have on the organization?

Environmental – What environmental and ecological facets, both locally and farther afield, are likely to predetermine the business?

Legal – What laws and legislation will exert influence on the style the business is carried out?

IFE, EFE, IE Matrices

The Internal Factor Evaluation matrix (IFE matrix) is a strategic management tool helping audit or evaluate major weaknesses and strengths in a business's functional areas. In addition, IFE matrix serves as a basis for identifying and assessing relationships amongst those areas. The IFE matrix is utilised in strategy formulation.

The External Factor Evaluation matrix (EFE matrix) is a tool of strategic management that is typically utilised to assess current market conditions. It is an ideal instrument for visualising and prioritising the threats and opportunities a firm is facing.

The essential difference between the above mentioned matrices lies in the type of factors incorporated in the model; whilst the latter is engaged in internal factors, the former deals exceptionally with external factors – those exposed to social, political, economic, legal, etc. external forces.

Being a continuation of the EFE matrix and IFE matrix models, the Internal External matrix (IE matrix) rests upon an investigation of external and internal business factors integrated into one suggestive model.

Porter Five Forces Analysis

The Porter's five forces analysis studies the industry of operation and helps the company find new sources of competitive advantage. The analysis surveys an industry through five major questions:

What composes a threat of substitute products and services?

Is there a threat of new competitors entering the market?

What is the intensity of competitive rivalry?

How big is the bargaining power of buyers?

How significant is the bargaining power of suppliers?

VRIO Analysis

VRIO stands for Value, Rarity, Imitability, Organization. This analysis helps to evaluate all company's resources and capabilities and bring them together into one aggregate table that includes:

Tangible resources

Financial

Physical

Technological

Organizational

Intangible resources

Human

Innovation and Creativity

Reputation

Organizational capabilities

The result of the analysis gives a clear picture of company's competitive and economic implications, answering the questions if the resources mentioned above are:

Valuable?

Rare?

Costly to imitate?

Organized properly?
