Abstracts

Global Frozen Meat Market is valued at approximately USD 32.49 billion in 2021 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 5.5% over the forecast period 2022-2028. Meat is frozen after slaughter to a temperature of minus 8 degrees Celsius or below. With the increasing pace of technological advancements, the shelf life of frozen meats is increasing wisely and hence creates more opportunities for the frozen meat Market. These advancements replenish to provide the best quality and fresh meats and hence push the sales of frozen meat Market. Increasing demand for ready-to-eat food drives the frozen meat Market. Changing habits and shifting towards convenience food along with the increasing population, consumers are adopting new habits in food culture and hence increasing the demand for packaged food, ready to eat, or microwaveable food products. Supermarkets and Hypermarkets hold the highest Market share in the distribution channel. To increase and maintain the frozen food shelf-life, manufacturers are rapidly adopting technological advancements and innovations. Degrading sales of frozen meat was perceived for the past two years due to supply chain interruptions during the pandemic. Increased shelf life of frozen meats increases its opportunities in import-export. For instance, BRF has its distribution networks through which it reaches directly to wholesalers and food processors of approx. 140 countries.

The key regions considered for the global Frozen Meat Market study include Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and the Rest of the World. The increasing number of distribution channels including large retail chains in the Asia

Pacific region accelerate the growth of the frozen meat Market in the region. Online distribution channel facilitates doorstep delivery and hence boost the demand for frozen meat Market in South Africa. Asia Pacific frozen meat Market is anticipated to grow with the highest CAGR during the forecast period. Japan accounts for more imports of the frozen meat Market. Raising demand for meat boosts the frozen meat Market globally over the forecast period 2022-2028.
