Abstracts

Global Home Security SystemsMarket is valued at approximately XX in 2021 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than xx% over the forecast period 2022-2028. The home security system is a collection of software and hardware devices designed to detect an intrusion or illegal entry if a protected zone is broken. There are numerous home security systems available, ranging from light sensors and security cameras to fully integrated smart home solutions. The devices may also warn about potential environmental hazards such as poor air quality, flooding, high levels of carbon monoxide, and so on, and can even operate in the event of a power outage. The increased awareness of home security systems, as well as the introduction of the Internet of Things (IoT) and wireless technologies, are driving the expansion of the home security systems market. These systems also have features like motion detection and night vision. With the rising crime rate, video surveillance is projected to play a key role in crime prevention, owing to the risk of getting caught. According to the Metropolitan Police, there were roughly 215.7 thousand violent crime offences documented by the police in London in 2018-2019, a 13.8 thousand rise over the figure recorded in 2017-2018. However, security cameras can be used for unanticipated purposes (and in violation of end-user licence agreements), which is prohibited under federal and state criminal laws and exposes abusers to civil liability. The cost of the hardware, software, and services required to establish a security system has a considerable impact on the adoption of home security solutions. However, AI and deep learning implementation in security system is expected to hamper market growth.

The key regions considered for the global Home Security Systems market study include Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and Rest of the World. North America holds dominating market share for home security systems. The region is on the cutting edge of introducing access control technologies to increase safety and security. Companies in the United States and Canada are expanding their expertise in access control systems in order to offer novel technology and services in this segment and obtain a competitive advantage over other countries. Whereas, APAC home security systems market is predicted to grow at a quick pace during the forecast period, owing to rising crime rates and growing urbanisation in countries such as China and India. In Japan, the government's increasing emphasis on fire safety measures is projected to generate market growth prospects.
