Abstracts

Global Lambda cyhalothrin Market is valued approximately USD XX billion in 2019 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than XX% over the forecast period 2020-2027. Lambda cyhalothrin is a class of pyrethroid chemical insecticide with a wide range of applications and characteristic repellent properties. Pyrethroid chemicals are synthetic pyrethrin chemical equivalents that are naturally occurring compounds found in Chrysanthemum plant flowers. The growth of the global market for lambda cyhalothrin is driven by rising concerns about insect-transferable diseases, focusing on disease prevention rather than cure, and rapid growth of commercial pest control services. According to Statista, about 68 percent of all U.S. revenues from pest control services came from residential services, while 28 percent came from non-residential services. Problems relating to the toxicity of lambda cyhalothrin such as irritation of the skin and eyes, non cardiogenic pulmonary edema, cardiovascular toxicity, coma, seizures and severe muscle fasciculation and strict government regulations on the use of insecticides hamper the overall growth of the market. Rising food grain demand due to rapid population growth and a considerable reduction in per capita farmland due to rapid industrialization and urbanization is an opportunity factor.

The regional analysis of global Lambda cyhalothrin market is considered for the key regions such as Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America and Rest of the World. North America is the leading/significant region across the world in terms of market share Whereas, Asia-Pacific is also anticipated to exhibit highest growth rate / CAGR over the forecast period 2020-2027. While the rise in bedbugs and other insects across the U.S. is a major concern for homeowners and business owners alike, it has been a boom for the extermination and pest control industry. Indeed, the North American region led the global pest control market in 2018, with US revenues rising by around 50%
