Abstracts

Global Nylon Monofilament Market is valued at approximately USD XX billion in 2021 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 5.5% over the forecast period 2022-2028. Nylon is a polymer filament that is frequently utilized in the fabric. The significant preference for nylon as the polymer filaments for these textiles is due to its high durability and good corrosion resistance. Nylon Monofilament is a synthetic fibre that is made up of a single, continuous thread. Nylon fishing line is the most well-known monofilament, and it has a broad range of applications. The market is driven by novel applications in the healthcare industry and growing demand for Nylon Monofilament from fishing nets. According to Statista, the volume of global fish production amounted to 174.6 million metric tons in 2020, up from 148.1 million metric tons in 2010. However, with rising demand in the coming years, fish production is predicted to increase in 2022, with production expected to reach 204 million tonnes in 2030. Furthermore, growing applications in the automotive sector and increasing demand for sports equipment, boost the market opportunities in the coming years. However, volatility in raw materials prices impedes the growth of the market over the forecast period of 2022-2028.

The key regions considered for the global Nylon Monofilament Market study include Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and Rest of the World. Asia Pacific is leading the market share globally and is expected to be the fastest growing region in the forecast years. The demand for nylon monofilament in this area is likely to be driven by increased demand for fishing nets and growing applications in the automotive industry in countries such as China, Japan, and India.
