Abstracts

Global Organic Fast-Food Market is valued at approximately USD 5.25 billion in 2021 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 14.7% over the forecast period 2022-2029. Organic fast food is a healthy and high-quality food due to the higher levels of some minerals such as phosphorus, magnesium and iron. Organic fast foods use products produced by organic farming that promote ecological balance and limit the use of pesticides and fertilizers. The Organic fast food market is a major factor of growth, Increasing awareness towards healthy products and rising demand for organic food in the global market.

The major key factor anticipated to accelerate the growth of the organic fast-food market is increased consumer awareness of healthy products, and rising production of organic farming. For instance, according to Statista– In 2020, the global organic production area amounted to approximately 74.9 million hectares, and the market is projected to grow to over 37 million hectares by 2027. Moreover, Global demand for Organic Fast Foods has also increased due to the increasing prevalence of chronic diseases such as cancer, diabetes, infectious diseases, and the financial burden of healthcare costs. In addition, Increased modernization, digitization of restaurants and the availability of healthier fast food create a positive outlook for the market. However, the high cost of organic fast food stifles market growth throughout the forecast period of 2022-2029.

The key regions considered for the Global Organic Fast-Food Market study includes

Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and Rest of the World. North America dominated the market in terms of revenue, and the industry in North America is predicted to grow rapidly due to the product's unique benefits, such as lacking chemicals and organic fast food being healthier than conventional products. Whereas Asia Pacific is expected to grow with the highest CAGR during the forecast period, owing to factors such as increased consumption of organic food and increased popularity of ready-to-eat products. In terms of manufacturing, China has a substantial portion of the organic food market.
