Abstracts

Global Organic White Tea Market is valued approximately at USD xx Billion in 2020 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than xx% over the forecast period 2021-2027. Organic white tea is made from young leaves of Camellia sinensis. It is gaining popularity as it contains high catechin content which prevents the skin from UV damage. It also contains antioxidant and antimicrobial properties which help in improving the human immune system. The global Organic White Tea market is being driven by rise in consumption of organic products and rising health awareness. Another driving factor is the increase in supply and demand for tea worldwide to boost the market growth. For instance: according to the Statista, the global market value of tea increased from USD 200.105 Billion in 2018 to USD 215.148 Billion in 2019.

Furthermore, positive influence of social media, the rising awareness about food adulteration, increasing product launches by the large established companies as well as new companies and rising prevalence of cardiovascular diseases as the consumption of white tea also reduces the risk of heart problems, will provide new opportunities for the global Organic White Tea industry. However, high prices of organic products and scarcity of natural resources to manufacture organic white tea may impede market growth over the forecast period of 2021-2027.

The key regions such as Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and Rest of the World are considered for the regional analysis of the global Organic White Tea Market. Europe is the leading region across the world in terms of market share due to growing health awareness and presence of large established companies in the region. Whereas Asia-Pacific is anticipated to exhibit the highest CAGR over the forecast period 2021-2027 due to the shifting consumer inclination for organic food products, high consumption of tea, increasing distribution channels and rising disposable income in the region.
