Abstracts

Global Skilled Nursing Facility and Rehabilitation Market is valued approximately USD XXX billion in 2021 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 4.5 % over the forecast period 2022-2028. After a stay in acute care hospitals or other healthcare settings, people can go to skilled nursing facilities for short-term nursing and rehabilitation services. Individuals who require greater levels of care outside of hospital settings for diseases that require constant monitoring by medical staff might receive services in skilled nursing facilities. Assistance with activities of daily living, post-hospital and post-surgical care, long-term custodial care, individual care plans, and other benefits are all available through skilled nurse facility services. This can be attributed to the expanding elderly population and, as a result, the global prevalence of chronic diseases. According to the National Council on Aging, 80 percent of persons over the age of 65 have at least one chronic illness, with 68 percent having two or more. Furthermore, rising health consciousness among individuals in various developed and developing countries is influencing the skilled facility service market's growth prospects. However, high cost of skilled nursing services impedes the growth of the market over the forecast period of 2022-2028.

The key regions considered for the global Skilled Nursing Facility and Rehabilitation Market study includes Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America, and Rest of the World. North America accounted for largest market share. The region has the well established healthcare infrastructure and strong public healthcare insurance systems which drives the market growth. From 2022 to 2028, the Asia Pacific regional market is expected to grow at the fastest rate. The expansion is projected to be aided by a growing population and rising levels of disposable income. Over the projection period, adoption of the most advanced technology and investments in healthcare would drive the market growth.
