Abstracts

Global Zeolite Market is valued approximately USD 31.77 billion in 2020 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 2.35 % over the forecast period 2021-2027. Zeolites are 3D crystalline solid aluminum silicates which are porous in nature, occur naturally but can be synthetically produced too for various purposes. They are widely used for water treatment in heavy metal industries, animal feed purification and detergents making process. The growing awareness for more ecological substitutes for phosphate and demand from petroleum and detergent industry as a catalyst in several processes has increased the disruptive impact that this chemical compound has for various industrial and commercial purposes.

According to BCC research in 2017, the global market for wastewater recycling touched approximately $12.2 Billion in 2016 and is expected to be $22.3 billion by 2021. Also, it is projected that present wastewater treatment capacity is 70% of the wastewater generated in high-income nations but only 8% in low-income nations of Africa and Asia. Although the manufacturing costs associated with some specialist Zeolites may hamper the growth of the market over the next few years, the growing need of wastewater treatment due to water scarcity across the globe provides a perfect opportunity for zeolite to grow in the next decade.

Key regions such as Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America and Rest of the World are analysed to provide a holistic picture of I Zeolite Market. Due to increase in population and need for more potable water along with increased industrial activities make the Asia-Pacific region the most important market in future. Since developed nations are actively trying to reduce their carbon footprint due to deteriorating global climatic conditions, North America is also expected to exhibit high growth rate over the forecast period 2021-2027.
