Abstracts

Global Remote Deposit Capture Market is valued at approximately USD 238.15 billion in 2019 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 6.2% over the forecast period 2020-2027. Remote Deposit Capture (RDC) is the use of online technologies to handle the check depositing process, such as digitally scanning the electronic check images instead of the original physical paper and submitting the check document directly to the customer's bank for easier access to the funds. This technology allows banks to offer funds to customers by software, thus reducing the difficulties involved with the complicated method of depositing and obtaining financing. Technology has been commonly used by banks, financial institutions and credit unions to boost efficiency and raise sales rapidly and instantly. In recent years, rapid growth in the remote-deposit capture market has boosted the adoption of remote-deposit capture platforms through digitalization initiatives between financial organizations and government initiatives for remote-deposit capture in developing countries, such as India and China. However, protection and regulatory issues associated with remote deposit capture platforms are likely to impede remote deposit capture development in the industry. On the contrary, technical developments, such as AI integration into remote repository capture platforms and a growth in cloud-based software adoption, are projected to provide attractive prospects for both the expansion of the global remote capture market during the forecast period.
