Dental Adhesive & Sealants is a non-toxic, water-soluble material used to gums and dentures to hold them in place and used to gums and dentures in the area and applied to ensure that dental adheres well to the oral mucosa. According to BlueQuark Research & Consulting, the global Dental Adhesive & Sealants market is expected to witness a significant growth rate during the forecasted period. Factors like increasing concerns among people for oral hygiene and healthcare are expected to be significantly seen in dental adhesives and sealants markets. Further, an increase in demand for dental restorations and a growing senior population propels the need for dental adhesives. Furthermore, a significant increase in the number of cases regarding mouth cancer will surge the market growth towards the dental adhesive and sealants market. However, the high cost of treatment, lower dental hygiene among adults, and stringent regulations governing dental adhesives in many countries are expected to hinder the growth of the market growth.

Dental adhesives and Sealants are widely used in dental treatment and dental medical devices.

The prime factors driving the market are increasing health expenditures and emphasis on improving dental procedures outcomes in developing countries, increasing the aging population worldwide. The demand for dental adhesive technology has evolved in recent times toward complex formulations with simplified clinical procedures. The growing demand for reduced technique sensitivity, less time-consuming clinical applications, & fewer incidences of post-operative sensitivity has made self-etch systems adhesive systems a promising approach compared to the other etch adhesive systems. Self-etch adhesive systems are also considered simplified adhesive materials & it offers some advantages over conventional etch and rinse techniques such as reduction of post-operative sensibility & less sensitive approach. The elemental composition of self-etch adhesive is an aqueous solution of acidic functional monomers, with pH relatively acidic functional monomers, with pH somewhat higher than that of phosphoric acid etchants and also contains Hydroxyethyl methacrylate (HEMA) monomer because most of the acidic monomers as most of the acidic monomers are low water-soluble and they also increase the wettability of the dentin surface.

Some market's key players are 3M, Den-Mat Holdings, LLC, Dentsply Sirona, Dux Industries, Inc., HemCon Medical Technology, Henkel, and Johnson & Johnson.

The North America dominates the dental adhesives & sealants market in the global scenario. It accounts for more than 40% of the worldwide market share, with the United States being the largest market. This is due to the easy availability of products, the presence of advanced technologies, & the favorable reimbursement structure. The Children Health Insurance Programme (CHIP) & Medical cover dental sealants, making them more affordable & encouraging the use of sealants & related services. The material used for dental sealants is made of plastic & is applied on the chewing surface on the back of a tooth, as they are susceptible to tooth decay. There are increasing concerns among people for oral hygiene & healthcare in the country, & investments are being made in the healthcare industry to develop smart infrastructure & to expand the existing facilities in the country. The dental adhesives & sealants market is highly susceptible to awareness for overall dental hygiene in the market. With high-tech innovations in the field, the market will benefit from the possible reduction in the price of dental treatment products will help the dental practitioners keep the treatment costs low.

In October 2021, FiteBac partnered with RDAAbbott and NovationSi to develop revolutionary antimicrobial polymer systems in novel medical and dental devices.

August 2020, Livongo and Teladoc Health Inc announced the completion of their merger agreement.
