Abstracts

The demand for industrial & institutional cleaning chemicals is witnessing rapid growth over the forecast period due to the rapid industrialization, stringent regulation over the sanitation in the industrial facilities, and institutions such as hospitals, schools, etc. The treat of growing number fatalities approximately over 175,000 caused by hospital-acquired infections (HAIs) every year in the large industrialized countries has made growing awareness of hygiene and led to an overall rise in the demand for the cleaning chemicals. Rapid expansion and construction of new commercial and retail spaces have significantly increased the consumption of cleaning chemicals in the institutional as well as in the industrial sector. The impact of global pandemic COVID-19 that infected over 4 million people and caused more than 270,000 fatalities across the world will further increase a meteoric demand for institutional cleaning chemicals. The above-mentioned factors anticipated to surge the demand for industrial and institutional cleaning chemicals and expected to drive a high demand in the coming years.
