Report Overview

Air Transport Insurance is a specialized type of insurance coverage designed to protect shippers and cargo owners from financial losses resulting from damage, theft, or other incidents that may occur during the transportation of goods via air. This insurance policy typically covers the goods from the moment they leave the shipper's premises until they reach the consignee's destination. It provides compensation for any physical loss or damage to the cargo, as well as for any additional expenses incurred due to delays or other disruptions in the transportation process. The policy may also include coverage for legal liability, warehousing costs, and other related expenses. Air Transport Insurance is crucial for businesses that rely on air freight for the movement of goods, as it mitigates the risks associated with this mode of transportation and ensures the financial security of the parties involved in the shipping process.

In 2024, the global Air Transport Insurance market is projected to reach approximately USD xx Million, with expectations to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of around xx between 2024 and 2033.
