Report Overview

At-Home Hair Colors and Dyes are cosmetic products designed for personal use, allowing individuals to change, enhance, or cover their hair color without the need for professional assistance. These products typically come in various forms such as creams, gels, or powders and are applied directly to the hair, often following a specific set of instructions to achieve the desired color outcome. They are formulated with coloring agents like ammonia, peroxide, or plant-based dyes that interact with hair proteins to produce the color change. At-Home Hair Colors and Dyes cater to a wide range of preferences, offering different shades, tones, and effects, such as temporary or permanent colors, highlighting kits, and gray coverage solutions. The convenience and cost-effectiveness of these products have made them popular among consumers looking to experiment with their hair color or maintain a specific look between salon visits.
