Report Overview

Corrugated board adhesive is a specialized type of adhesive used in the manufacturing process of corrugated cardboard. It is a critical component in the production of corrugated packaging materials, which are widely used in the shipping and packaging industry due to their strength, lightweight, and recyclability. This adhesive is designed to bond the layers of paper, typically a liner board, a corrugated medium, and another liner board, together to form a sturdy and durable corrugated board. The adhesive must have strong adhesion properties to ensure the structural integrity of the final product, which is subjected to various stresses during transportation and handling. It is also essential for the adhesive to dry quickly to facilitate efficient production processes and to be resistant to environmental factors such as moisture and temperature changes to maintain the performance of the corrugated board over time.
