Report Overview

Distearth-75 IPDI is a specialized polyurethane polymer derived from isophorone diisocyanate (IPDI) and distearyl alcohol, functioning as a key ingredient in high-performance cosmetic and personal care formulations. It is primarily used as a film-forming agent, emulsifier, or viscosity modifier in products such as long-wear makeup, sunscreens, and hair styling formulations due to its water resistance, flexibility, and adhesion properties. The compound's ability to enhance product durability and texture without compromising skin compatibility makes it valuable in premium and professional-grade cosmetics. Demand is driven by the growing preference for long-lasting, multifunctional beauty products, particularly in markets emphasizing sustainability and performance. Regulatory scrutiny over synthetic ingredients and the shift toward bio-based alternatives may influence future adoption, though its efficacy ensures steady usage in niche applications. Competition includes other polyurethane-based modifiers, but Distearth-75 IPDI maintains relevance through its balance of functional benefits and formulation versatility.
