Report Overview

Fast-casual dining refers to a type of restaurant that offers a more relaxed and informal dining experience compared to traditional sit-down restaurants, while still providing a higher quality of food and service than fast food establishments. This dining concept combines elements of quick service and casual dining, allowing customers to order at a counter and receive their meals in a timely manner, typically within minutes. Fast-casual restaurants often emphasize fresh, high-quality ingredients, customizable menu options, and a comfortable atmosphere, catering to a diverse range of customers seeking a more enjoyable and convenient dining experience. Examples of popular fast-casual dining chains include Chipotle, Panera Bread, and Sweetgreen.
