Report Overview

A filter cake crusher, also known as a cake breaker or cake grinder, is a machine used in solid-liquid separation processes to reduce the size of the solid material that has accumulated on a filter medium. During filtration, when a liquid is passed through a filter medium, the solid material present in the liquid is captured in the form of a solid cake on the surface of the filter medium. Over time, the cake can become dense and compact, making it difficult to remove from the filter medium. A filter cake crusher is used to break up and reduce the size of this solid cake, making it easier to handle and remove.
