Report Overview:

According to the type of camera (2D camera, depth camera), it can be divided into two categories: 1) 2D gesture recognition based on 2D camera and 2) 3D gesture recognition based on 3D camera (such as Microsoft Kinnect). Early gesture recognition is based on two-dimensional color image recognition technology. The so-called two-dimensional color image refers to the two-dimensional static image obtained after the scene is shot by the ordinary camera, and then the content in the image is recognized by the computer graphics algorithm. Two-dimensional hand recognition can only identify a few static gestures, and these gestures must be preset in advance. Compared with 2D gesture recognition, 3D gesture recognition adds a Z-axis information, which can recognize various hand shapes, gestures and movements. Three-dimensional gesture recognition is also the main direction of gesture recognition development. However, this kind of gesture recognition, which contains some depth information, needs special hardware to realize. The common ones are sensors and optical cameras. The most important part of gesture recognition includes the tracking of gesture and the subsequent computer data processing. Gesture capture is mainly achieved through optical and sensor two ways. Gesture recognition prediction algorithms, including template matching technology (used in two-dimensional gesture recognition technology), through statistical sample features and deep learning neural network technology.

The Global 2D Gesture Recognition Market Size was estimated at USD 136.21 million in 2023 and is projected to reach USD 587.93 million by 2029, exhibiting a CAGR of 27.60% during the forecast period.
