Report Overview

4K, known as UHD, is a picture technology that quadruples the number of pixels found in a full HD picture. With 4K, pixels are usually arranged in a 3,840 x 2,160 configuration, compared with the 1920x1080 you get in a full HD TV.

Asia Pacific held the largest share in 2016, as China has transformed into the biggest consumer of 4K TVs, accounting for more than 70% of the global share in the same year. Mass availability of 4K TVs coupled with low price offerings is the major reason behind the huge consumptions of 4K TVs in the country.

North America being an early adopter witnessed a significant growth with the introduction of 4K TVs, a trend expected to continue over the forecast period. Further, the regional 4K TV market growth is also attributed to the growing adoption of 4K set-top boxes that allow exploiting the full capability of 4K TVs with improved picture quality. The region is expected to witness tremendous growth also owing a drop in prices of 4K TVs, and it is anticipated that by 2025 more than half the American population will own at least one 4K TV. The European 4K TV market also exhibited a moderate growth due to an increasing demand in the UK and Germany. The proliferation of TVs supporting HDR will be a key factor expected to drive the growth in developed markets.
