Report Overview

Affiliate marketing is a performance-based advertising model where businesses (merchants or advertisers) reward third-party partners (affiliates or publishers) for driving traffic or sales to their products or services through the affiliate's marketing efforts. Affiliates promote the merchant's offerings via various channels such as blogs, social media, email campaigns, or paid ads, earning a commission?typically a percentage of the sale or a fixed fee?for each successful referral. This model benefits merchants by minimizing upfront marketing costs, as they only pay for actual conversions, while affiliates gain passive income opportunities without needing to develop their own products. The ecosystem includes affiliate networks that connect merchants with publishers, tracking software to monitor performance, and regulations to ensure transparency and compliance. The rise of digital commerce, influencer marketing, and data-driven optimization has significantly expanded the reach and sophistication of affiliate programs, making it a key growth channel for e-commerce businesses, SaaS companies, and content creators alike.
