Abstracts

Anise extracts and flavors are concentrated solutions derived from the star anise plant or anise seeds, primarily obtained through steam distillation or solvent extraction to capture the characteristic sweet, licorice-like flavor compound known as anethole; these products are widely utilized across the food and beverage industry as natural or artificial flavoring agents in baked goods, confectionery, alcoholic beverages (such as ouzo, pastis, and sambuca), pharmaceuticals, and oral care products due to their potent aromatic properties and functional benefits in masking undesirable tastes or enhancing sensory profiles. The market is driven by consumer demand for natural ingredients, the growth of ethnic and gourmet cuisines, and increasing applications in health-oriented products, though it faces challenges related to supply chain volatility, regulatory scrutiny on synthetic variants, and competition from substitute flavors like fennel or tarragon.

The global Anise Extracts And Flavors market size was estimated at USD 365.42 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.85% during the forecast period.
