Abstracts

Anti Static ESD (Electrostatic Discharge) flooring refers to specialized flooring systems designed to control static electricity by providing a path for electrostatic charges to dissipate safely, thereby protecting sensitive electronic equipment, preventing data loss, and reducing the risk of fire or explosion in environments where static buildup poses a threat. These flooring solutions, which include conductive or static-dissipative tiles, sheets, or coatings, are engineered with materials such as vinyl, rubber, or epoxy that incorporate carbon or metallic elements to achieve specific electrical resistance properties, ensuring compliance with industry standards like ANSI/ESD S20.20 or IEC 61340-5-1 for applications in electronics manufacturing, data centers, healthcare facilities, laboratories, and cleanrooms.
