Report Overview

Apparel is a term used to refer to items worn on the body made of fabric or textiles. Clothing products include a variety of products, such as shirts, socks, socks, and sweaters. They also include tailored clothes such as suits, dresses, and pants. Leather is a durable and soft material that is considered a luxury item, including footwear, luggage, luggage, purses and purses, and other accessories. The high price of leather products is due to the high price of the final product, the high volume of activities involved in converting raw materials into finished products and the increased manufacturing costs.
