Abstracts

The B2B2C general insurance market refers to a business model where insurance providers partner with non-insurance businesses (such as banks, retailers, e-commerce platforms, or technology companies) to distribute insurance products directly to the end customers of those partner organizations. This approach enables insurers to leverage the partner's existing customer base, brand trust, and distribution channels to offer embedded or white-labeled insurance solutions such as travel, gadget, home, or auto coverage seamlessly integrated into the customer journey of the partner's core offerings. By operating through intermediaries, insurers can reduce customer acquisition costs, enhance product accessibility, and create value-added services for partner ecosystems, while the partner businesses benefit from additional revenue streams and improved customer loyalty without needing to develop or underwrite insurance products themselves.

The global B2B2C General Insurance market size was estimated at USD 510.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.50% during the forecast period.
