Abstracts

The B2B2C health insurance market refers to a distribution model where insurers partner with businesses or organizations to offer health insurance products directly to the end consumers (employees, members, or customers) of those entities. In this arrangement, the insurer (the first "B") leverages the established trust and infrastructure of a partner organization (the second "B") to reach and serve the consumer (the "C"), enabling a more efficient, embedded, and often customized approach to insurance provision. This model is distinct from traditional B2B group insurance as it emphasizes individual choice, flexibility, and personalized plans, while also differing from direct-to-consumer (D2C) models by relying on intermediary partnerships for distribution, customer acquisition, and engagement.

The global B2B2C Health Insurance market size was estimated at USD 520.75 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.20% during the forecast period.
