Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Baby Books competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Baby books are educational books designed specifically for infants and toddlers. They typically use safe and environmentally friendly materials (such as non-toxic inks, cardboard, fabric, or soft plastic) and are tear-resistant, bite-resistant, and waterproof. They help infants develop visual, auditory, tactile, and language skills in their early stages, while avoiding the fragility and safety hazards of traditional paper books. The price is approximately $8.60 per unit, with global sales of approximately 407 million copies. Upstream industries include paper, fabric, environmentally friendly inks, and printing equipment; downstream industries include publishers, mother and baby retailers, educational institutions, and families. Future trends include environmentally friendly materials, interactive and intelligent features (electronic voice, AR recognition), and global distribution, especially in the Asian and North American markets, where the demand for early childhood education is increasing, leading to continued growth in the baby book market.
