Abstracts

The market for business retirement plans encompasses a broad range of employer-sponsored retirement savings vehicles designed to help employees accumulate funds for retirement while offering tax advantages to both employers and participants. These plans include defined contribution options such as 401(k), 403(b), and SIMPLE IRA plans, as well as defined benefit pensions, though the latter have become less common due to cost and complexity. The market is driven by regulatory frameworks, corporate fiduciary responsibilities, demographic trends like an aging workforce, and increasing emphasis on financial wellness as a component of employee benefits packages. Key stakeholders include plan providers (such as financial services firms and insurance companies), third-party administrators, employers of varying sizes, and employees as end beneficiaries. Demand is influenced by factors including tax policy changes, fee transparency requirements, the growing adoption of automatic enrollment and escalation features, and competition for talent, which makes robust retirement benefits a strategic tool for employee retention and recruitment. Technological advancements, particularly in digital enrollment, education, and investment management platforms, are also reshaping service delivery and participant engagement.

The global Business Retirement Plan market size was estimated at USD 12500.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.50% during the forecast period.
