Abstracts

Cadmium nitrate tetrahydrate, a crystalline inorganic compound with the chemical formula $\text{Cd}(\text{NO}_3)_2 \cdot 4\text{H}_2\text{O}$, is primarily used in industrial applications such as electroplating, the production of cadmium-based pigments and stabilizers for plastics, laboratory research as a reagent or precursor for cadmium compounds, and specialized applications like phosphor manufacturing and sensors. The market for this chemical is largely driven by demand from these industrial and research sectors, though it operates under stringent regulatory oversight due to cadmium's toxicity and environmental persistence, which influences both production practices and end-use applications. Geographically, consumption is concentrated in regions with strong manufacturing and chemical processing industries, such as East Asia, North America, and Europe, though growth is tempered by environmental regulations and increasing substitution efforts with less hazardous alternatives.

The global Cadmium Nitrate Tetrahydrate market size was estimated at USD 52.4 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.75% during the forecast period.
